A man taking his large family on an outing finds he must sit up on the box with the cabman. The cabman tells him some queer, tall tales about another fare he had taken about London. It's rather more Dickensian than Sherlockian - like a scene from Pickwick Papers, not a real story with a beginning, middle and end.

A Caveman's Life by James Cordingley. Tags: 10-11, Fiction, New York City Grunt listened to the boring story. Grunt wanted to be outside playing with the big, loud wolves rather than staying inside a dusty and dark cave. He knew that the reason why his parents were staying in the cave was because they were scared of the outside world.
